

Pure Swiss Aesthetics are excited to be exhibiting at Aesthetic Medicine Live on 29th February and 1st March 2020. Aesthetic Medicine Live is a free event and welcomes exhibitors, speakers, delegates and visitors to Olympia London for a fantastic two days of networking and education.

Our team will be delighted to meet you and will be available on Stand H10.

There will also be a Live Stage presentation on Sunday 1st March at 1.30pm, presented by Helen Taylor on 'The Importance of Barrier Function for Optimal Skin Protection and Repair'.

Helen has been in the industry for 30 years. As well as working within her own clinic in Rugby and soon one in Harley Street, she has written and published her own book.

Helen is truly thrilled to have the BYONIK treatment at her clinic. She believes that it fits in with her Taylormade® ethos and the ever growing need to work to enhance and support skin health for all her clients.

CLINIC IN THE NORTH WEST

'I am thrilled to Introduce the BYONIK into our treatment portfolio. The whole experience with BYONIK from initial enquiry through to date has been exemplary. It's a pleasure to deal with a professional yet friendly company who are dedicated to their products and clients wholeheartedly.

From the minute I learned more about BYONIK, I knew it was special and would be game changing for us and the industry. It sits perfectly with our ethos to skin health and the results it delivers with the comfort of client safety is exciting. I love being at the front of new technology and developments in the industry and the science behind BYONIK is truly exciting in its applications and benefits. We believe that BYONIK is the future and will become a treatment that every client who is proactive about skin health will enjoy regularly'. - Cara Tinning

Skin secrets of Ashley Roberts, Denise Van Outen and Sophie Habboo revealed as £220 NASA-inspired facial

The unique heartbeat facial is designed to be guided by the beat of your heart so it is different for every client and helps to maintain hydration.

The elastin can move more freely, elasticity improves, the skin receives intensive moisture and gains volume, and contours become more defined.

In most cases the effects can already be seen following the first treatment and another star who has seen the effects is Denise Van Outen.
